"For God So Loved the World..."

by Tim Tripp

If you love a paradigm more than you love people, you'll stop acting lovingly toward anyone who breaks the mold of your way of thinking. The problem with that way of thinking is that is not how God loves us. He loves us regardless of how closely we align with his way of thinking. With his love he tries to move us toward his way of thinking.

One of the most memorized passages of scripture is John 3:16. "For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life."

It states that God has such an enormous unconditional love for people that he was willing to take on flesh and give his life as an atoning sacrifice so that the way could be cleared for us to overcome our paradigm struggles and be a part of his kingdom on earth. God clearly was more in love with people than with a paradigm.

A friend and West Side member, Alex Bauserman wrote a blog post about genuine love that he has given me permission to use. I think it accurately describes the kind of love we need to have for one another. Give it a read and Thanks to Alex for allowing me to use his excellent written work.

Genuine Love, by Alex Bauserman

"Let love be genuine..." - Romans 12:9

The aspect of Christianity I personally find most compelling is the potential for honest relationship. Although we live in an increasingly guarded world, we are a people desperate for intimacy. Over the past ten years I've spent considerable time evaluating what it means to love - more specifically, what it means to love one another genuinely. My initial experience with Christian community was extremely optimistic and validating, and I strongly believe the love shown by those individuals was paramount in molding who I am today.

However, with great power comes great responsibility. Words have been a beacon of hope in my life when I was surrounded by darkness, and yet those same words have at times left me suffocating. The phrase, "I love you" is powerful because there is freedom in being fully known and loved. I, however, am guilty of compromising that expression by being negligent towards those for whom I have proclaimed to care.

How often have I declared love for someone, yet my actions were silent? As a member of the Church, the body of Christ, how often do I forsake opportunities of the heart to show God's love through empathy and compassion?

The truth behind those questions elicits a pain I feel deeply within myself. Love is not always easy, but I have to believe there is hope in tomorrow if we genuinely love today. Our ability to reach into dark, broken places is predicated upon our willingness to take a step in faith. Let's show one another that love is more than words.

DIOS LE BENDIGA! (God Bless You!)

by Aris Ortiz

I just can imagine when Jesus was young, a teenager, or even in his twenties. How could it have been? All those years that we don't read in the New Testament concerning his life, his friends and all about his home, brothers and sisters, I do wonder about that. And I picture him in my mind as a well behaved child, an obedient teenager and a productive young man. Understanding that he was The Verb! And that all knowledge was in him, on how everything works and is made. Wow, he was perfect in all! I can see him not taking ANY advantage of anyone when others were vulnerable, or weak, or ignorant about specific situations. He wouldn't have acted with intentions of doing wrong to anyone, but contrary to that. I imagine him giving up those things that for others had great value or importance, or those positions that others wanted to have, because he knew that all that was "stuff", "material things" or "vanities". I can see him as someone able to accept or tolerate delays, problems, or suffering without becoming annoyed or anxious (description of "patient") because he knew that all of that was temporary and that He was eternal, coming from eternity and very soon, going back to where he came from: Heaven. I can see a powerful lesson even in those words that ARE NOT in the Scriptures, of Jesus' life that is not written but we can see it in our hearts! Let us consider my West Side Family, about the life of that Divine person who became "human" that gave it all up for us, for you and me, that we will have everything that God in eternity is promising! DIOS LE BENDIGA West Side Family!
